ACT II STUDIO: Period Study

NEW!

❖ Introduction to Melodrama CSAC 484

Prerequisite(s): CSAC 115

Melodrama, characterized by high emotionalism and archetypes of villain, victim, and hero, had its roots in the late eighteenth century and became a popular theatre genre well into the twentieth century when it had a profound impact on films - especially early 'chick flicks'. With exercises and scenes, we'll trace the acting styles associated with melodramas through the years. This course is a preparation for courses leading to the February performance.

Advanced Publishing Workshops

NEW!

❖ Effective Editorial-Design Relationship CDPB 500

This workshop is intended for editors who work with designers and designers who work with editors. Too often, these two key figures in the publication process fail to understand each other's roles. What can be a highly creative partnership is fettered by lack of information, inappropriate communication, and unrealistic expectations. Developing the tools to build a more effective engagement, the workshop covers following topics: the stages of the editorial/design liaison; what a designer should ask; what an editor should ask; art assessment for editors; preparing a design brief and art manuscript; supplying imagery; editing illustrative materials; constructive (and unconstructive) feedback; and real and imaginary cost savings.

Note: Industry experience or a completed Publishing certificate or the equivalent is recommended.

❖ Publicity for Book Publishers CDPB 110

Generating publicity for a book and author plays a key role in a publisher's overall marketing plan. The quality of publicity can determine whether a book succeeds or not. In today's publishing world, creative publicity counts; the competition for people's attention is fierce. This course looks at the many types of book publicity practised today. These include author media appearances, special events, tours, and a growing number of online initiatives. We will discuss campaigns, trade shows, and the need to position clearly the book and author. Students will look at case studies, undertake research, and create media kit materials. The course will also introduce the related field of public relations, which includes developing a publisher profile, improving brand awareness, involvement in the community, and occasionally a little crisis control.

❖ Introduction to Voice and Speech CDTH 385

This course is an introduction to voice and speech which will facilitate gaining awareness of breath, alignment, and articulation. This awareness will bring clarity and effectiveness to what you have to say, and the ideas you need to get across without vocal strain or nervousness. If you are training to be in a profession where you will be required to make presentations or speak to groups of people, whether it is for business presentation, teaching, or as an actor, the basics of voice production remain the same. This course will help identify your vocal needs and how to work towards more effective speaking.

Note: Comfortable clothing (suitable for movement) should be worn to first class.

Instructor: Irene Pauzer holds an MFA from York University with specializations in teaching voice, speech, and movement as well as over 25 years of experience in theatre, film, and television as an actor and dancer. Teaching/coaching credits include Ryerson Theatre School, the Stratford Festival, the Voice Intensive, West Virginia University, York University, Randolph School of Performing Arts, and Equity Showcase.

12 Hours included HST Fee: $323

❖ Introduction to Acting With Monologues CDTH 442

This introductory workshop is designed to explore some of the fundamentals of acting by exploring the written word through the use of monologues. Audition advice and aspects of the business will also be covered.

Note: Instructor: Kevin McCormick has been training actors in Toronto since 1979 and 2005 marked his 25th year working with Ryerson continuing education students. Kevin has worked as artistic director, producer, director, acting instructor, and consultant. He founded Theatre Collingwood, was artistic director of the Meaford Opera House, and a founding member of The Toronto Association of Acting Studios. Along with Ryerson Theatre School, some teaching credits include York University, Seneca College, Canadian College of Dance, and The National Ballet of Canada. Kevin is active as director of Actors Tutorial, artistic director of Victory Artists, and teaches regularly for the acclaimed Equity Showcase Theatre. He is currently working on a book entitled In Search of the Artist Within - Conversations on Acting.

16 Hours included HST Fee: $278

★ Landmarks in Canadian Theatre CTHF 403

A survey of the development of theatre in Canada with an emphasis on landmark plays. The course starts with the 1606 production of the "Theatre of Neptune" and traces play development through the new garrison performances, stock and foreign imports, the Little Theatre revolution, the national Dominion Drama Festival competitions, the post WWII professional companies, regional theatres, the so-called alternate theatres of the 1970s, and subsequent developments into the 21st century. The course considers the impact of landmark works on Canadian culture.

42 Hours Fee: $492

Not offered in fall/winter/spring 2009-2010.

Traditional Chinese Medicine

Traditional Chinese medicine (TCM) addresses the promotion, maintenance, and restoration of health, and the assessment, prevention, and treatment of diseases, disorders, and dysfunctions. Diagnosis and treatment measures include acupuncture, herbal medicine, dietary therapy, exercise therapy, and tuina massage. Interest in TCM is rapidly expanding in Canada and around the globe. The World Health Organization has encouraged the spread of TCM to meet the health care needs of the 21st century, and the trend to integrate TCM and allopathic medicine in many Western countries is growing.

Chinese Medicine

Foundations of Chinese Medicine CVCM 100

This course introduces the basic theoretical concepts of traditional Chinese medicine (TCM). Students will explore Yin/Yang theory; the five elements; traditional models for physiological function, including the Zang and Fu organs and the substrates of Energy (Qi), Essence (jing), Blood (Xue), and Body Fluids (jin/ye); the origins and processes of diseases; and the overall objectives of treatment. The course also introduces the concept of the acupuncture meridian system and the TCM understanding of the fourteen major meridians, and the internal organs and their various relationships. The theoretical and philosophical components of this course have a continuing and progressive application in all aspects of acupuncture throughout the program.

42 Hours Fee: $492

Not offered in fall/winter/spring 2009-2010.

Integrative Health Care: Challenges and Issues CVCM 101

Integrative health care is identified by the World Health Organization as a phenomenon that is developing in health care systems not only in North America, but also in countries such as China, India, and Vietnam. It involves the coordination of multi-disciplinary and culturally specific health services and practices in the treatment of illness and disease (such as the combination of Chinese acupuncture with Western biomedical drugs), and an expanded concept of health, illness, and wellness. This course explores the different ways integration is being achieved and associated issues and opportunities. Specific topics include introductions to: complementary/alternative medicine in industrialized countries and commonly used modalities; traditional medicine and primary health care; traditional Chinese medicine; Ayurvedic medicine; Canada's First Nations; and integrative health systems and models.

42 Hours Fee: $492

Not offered in fall/winter/spring 2009-2010.

Diagnosis in Chinese Medicine: Basics CVCM 202

Prerequisite(s): CVCM 100

This course focuses on the traditional Chinese medicine (TCM) diagnostic system. It will cover the four classical diagnostic methods including tongue and pulse diagnosis and differentiation of syndromes according to the Ba Gang (eight principles of diagnosis), Qi and Blood, Zang Fu organs, pathogenic factors and the theory of the Six Channels. There will be practical sessions in the class. The exploration of the patient/practitioner relationship commences in the course and continues throughout the program.

42 Hours Fee: $492

Not offered in fall/winter/spring 2009-2010.

Herbal Treatment in Traditional Chinese Medicine: Basics CVCM 204

Prerequisite(s): CVCM 100

This course provides an introduction to Chinese herbal medicine. In the first part of the course, the students will be introduced to the most commonly used medicinal substances in TCM, and to the names of the substances and substance identification methods, character and flavour, function and indications, major clinical application, dosage range, and relevant combinations of medicines. The course also covers medicinal incompatibilities, precautions, and relevant scientific research describing physiological action.

42 Hours Fee: $492

Not offered in fall/winter/spring 2009-2010.

Acupuncture Treatment in Chinese Medicine: Basics CVCM 206

Prerequisite(s): CVCM 100

This course covers the acupuncture meridian system and the acupuncture points in detail. Students study the theoretical understanding of the meridians, their various components, and the characteristic functions of the primary and secondary channels. Acupoints will be presented individually and in combination according to the classical acupoints categories, the practical skill of acupoint location, the physiological functions of the simulated acupoints, and the individual therapeutic effects. At the end, the basic needling techniques will be introduced. Students study how to prepare for a routine acupuncture procedure using filiform needles and how to perform needling.

42 Hours Fee: $492

Not offered in fall/winter/spring 2009-2010.

Risk Management in Traditional Chinese Medicine CVCM 210

Risk management in the context of Traditional Chinese Medicine health care services includes the following knowledge and skills: action plans to address medical emergencies in an office setting; effects and side effects of common prescription medications and their effects on pulse diagnosis; assessment of vital signs; clinical record-keeping and medical-legal issues; identification of conditions for referral from TCM practitioners to other health care providers; and clean needling techniques and infection control.

Herbal Treatment in Chinese Medicine: Clinical CVCM 214

Prerequisite(s): CVCM 204

This course introduces the principles of the clinical application of Chinese herbal medicine as they are used in prescriptions. The prescription rationale involves the analysis of herbal formulas, including differential diagnosis, and the building and modification of formulas. Students learn how multiple combinations of herbs (or "pairing") improve the effect of individual herbs for treatment of different health conditions. A number of standard formulas are introduced in regard to their function category, composition, actions, indications, analysis, modifications and precautions.

42 Hours Fee: $492

Not offered in fall/winter/spring 2009–2010.

Acupuncture Treatment in Chinese Medicine: Clinical CVCM 216

Prerequisite(s): CVCM 206

The clinical acupuncture course provides a general introduction to acupuncture treatment, including the general principles, point prescription, and the application of specific points. The specific acupuncture approaches to treat common internal diseases will be introduced. This clinical course focuses on areas of acupuncture practice to enable students to develop the ability to differentiate clinical presentations and establish treatment protocol according to the various systems within TCM. In the supervised practice session, the students draw upon all previous studies in combination with this course to present a diagnosis and principles of treatment using fellow students as well as real patients.

42 Hours Fee: $492

Not offered in fall/winter/spring 2009–2010.

TCM Clinical Diagnosis and Treatment CVCM 302

Students will learn to apply the Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) diagnose techniques, herbal medicine treatment, and acupuncture treatments all together on different patterns of disease. Case presentation and analysis will be the main form of study to help students understand the practical applications of the principles of TCM diagnosis and the rationales of treatment plans for a broad range of health conditions. Students are guided to develop independence by presenting their diagnoses and treatment plans for review and critique and formulating their own assessments at a level appropriate to their academic and clinical level of training.

★ Selected Topics in Planning

CPLE 845

Prerequisite(s): PLG 420 or in UP002 or UP003

This one semester course will address current topic relevant to the practice and profession of planning.

Note: Anyone without the course prerequisites listed above may apply for admission to this course by contacting the School of Urban and Regional Planning to receive permission to register at 416.979.5165. Permission will be granted for students who have courses that include OHS 322, ASC 403, or GEO 313 or GEO 372.

★ Conflict Resolution and Dispute Negotiation

CPLE 895

Prerequisite(s): PLG 420 or in UP002 or UP003

Antirequisite(s): CINT 905

Conventional ways of handling public disputes no longer seem to be working. Planners who are involved in building new facilities, dealing with community opposition, developing environmental standards, or allocating limited resources to meet emerging social standards, face stiff opposition no matter where they turn. The result is costly, time-consuming, and erodes public confidence in our basic institutions. This course will use case studies, projects, and participatory techniques to show how public dispute management can lead to consensus building strategies that not only save time and money, but produce broadly acceptable agreements.

Writing Workshops and Seminars

You can be the writer you've always dreamed of becoming. Let our group of talented instructors help unlock and develop your talents in short fiction, novel, poetry, or dramatic writing. Explore specialized genres. Tell your own life story. Enhance your business writing skills. For more information, including instructor biographies, visit www.ryerson.ca/ce/writing.

Autobiographical Writing

- ❖ True to Life: Writing Your Own Story CWWR 336
Adventure, turbulence, joy: we all contain a universe of stories. Is it time for you to get started, or restarted, in putting your personal narratives on paper? This relaxed, supportive workshop will help you find the tales you want to tell and the craft and technique to make them compelling to read, whether as memoir, personal essay, or a beginning exploration. Each week students are given a choice of topics and asked to bring in a short piece of new writing. The instructor provides encouragement, structure, and practical feedback to help students discover and hone their unique voices. Learn how to dig deep and stay on track; how to cut, sharpen and polish; and where to send the work you want to share with the world.

- ❖ Creative Travel Writing CWWR 952

"What am I doing here?" was the late travel writer Bruce Chatwin's guiding question. Creative travel writing, as practised by such noted writers as Bill Bryson, Mary Morris, and Paul Theroux, is more than a catalogue of places visited, buses missed, and cathedrals toured. It is the story of the author's relationship to place; it is both outer and inner journey. In this workshop you will be taken through exercises designed to trigger memory, sharpen your powers of observation, and create travel stories and articles using techniques borrowed from the craft of fiction: characterization, description, dialogue, etc. Beginning writers are welcome.

Genre and Specialty Writing

- ❖ Writing for The Children's Market CWWR 298
This lively workshop is jam-packed with concrete advice, gossip about the industry, and anecdotal information. We move from picture book to young adult novel, non-fiction to science fiction, with many stops along the way. The works of well-known Canadian authors are studied to deconstruct the writer's craft, and each student is encouraged to read aloud their own works in progress. By the end of the session, you will have the tools to tackle your children's book and a thorough understanding of the wonderful world of children's lit. Beginning writers welcome.

- ❖ Beyond Writing Romance Novels CWWR 305
Writing commercial fiction for women doesn't mean writing a cliché romance novel. Thanks to novelists like Diana Gabaldon, Janet Evanovich, and Helen Fielding, modern romantic fiction has expanded to include chick lit, mystery, suspense, comedy, family sagas, and more. If you're interested in writing commercial fiction for women, this course will help you understand where you want to go within the genre and how to get there. Using building blocks of fiction (characterization, view point, dialogue, character arc, conflict, etc.), you'll learn how to develop a story that will grab an editor's attention and hold on until the happy ending. ❖ Writing Television Situation Comedy CWWR 446
 This course teaches the craft of writing for today's television situation comedies. Scripts of classic and current shows are analyzed for form and style, but the primary goal is for each student to complete an original script for an existing show. He or she will participate in the entire process, beginning with the story pitch, on to the outline and through the various stages of writing and rewriting, ending with the final round-table polish. This project-oriented course gives the student a sense of the TV sitcom workplace. Beginning writers welcome.

Works in Progress: A Ten-Month Workshop

This is a highly participatory workshop series in the Novel, Short Fiction, and Personal Non-Fiction, designed for those who have already taken one or more writing courses at Ryerson and who would like to meet regularly with their instructor and colleagues to receive ongoing feedback on their work.

The first session (1 1/2 hours) will be devoted to discussing the format of sessions and establishing a submission schedule. Subsequent sessions will be 2 1/2 hours in length.

Over the course of 10 sessions, each participant will have the opportunity to submit several pieces of work. Where appropriate, manuscripts will provide the basis for review of style elements learned in the introductory courses.

Participants will be responsible for bringing to class enough copies of their work for each class member and the instructor. Instructors will only review materials presented in class. Class size will be limited to 12.

Writing

Whether you're a budding novelist or a seasoned scribe, you'll find a wide range of fascinating and enriching opportunities to hone your skills and expand your repertoire. Study in class or online – either way, you'll be part of a dynamic writing community.

❖ Writers and the New Media CWWR 369
 This hands-on course is for writers who want to create and maintain a website featuring their own work. You will learn web authoring software (such as Dreamweaver), design a site made up of several pages, get a domain name and server, and post your site to the web. There will be time during class to work on your web pages. We will examine usability and design issues, web strategy, and web presence. Homework will include bringing in content for your site such as your bio, written material, photos, and links. The goal of this course is to have a website completed and online by the end of the course.

❖ Novel Writing - Level I CWWR 420

"Don't tell me the moon is shining; show me the glint of light on broken glass." -Anton Chekhov
The course includes thoughtful discussion of the elements of novel writing: inspiration and the sustaining of ideas, plotting, setting, character, and point of view. Students will receive feedback on their work from both the class and the teacher. Each class will be structured around writing exercises to build practical skills, a discussion of student manuscripts, as well as a lesson on important facets of narrative technique. Students will learn how to build a novel narrative (a novel outline) and how to write scenically (one strong chapter). Beginning writers welcome.

❖ Short Fiction and Novel Writing - Level III CWWR 425

The focus of this workshop will be rewriting; learning to look at a manuscript critically, with an eye toward developing the story or novel's potential. Participants will present at least three chapters or stories from a work-in-progress for discussion and evaluation. Objectives will include strengthening structure, narrative drive, deepening characterization, trimming exposition, and intensifying scenes. Participants will be encouraged to experiment, to make mistakes, to scratch out, and, if necessary, to start over. Rewriting is often perceived as difficult, but anything can be changed, shaped, and reshaped. This workshop will communicate to its participants that there is no fear in rewriting, only promise.

❖ From Vapour to Paper: Journal Writing CWWR 395

Anne Frank kept one. So did Jim Morrison. Joan Didion describes hers as a way of keeping the lines open to herself. And bloggers, on the other hand, open their lines to the universe. Keeping a private journal is not about making art, but rather, tracking your own ideas, secret inventions, recipes, insights, dreams, nightmares, song lyrics, cartoons, prayers, and so on. This workshop will expand your definition of journal; offer guidance in how best to structure your own journal; and offer practical tips on security, daily discipline, and journal-block.
